Merry Christmas!

December 2023

Merry Christmas from all of us. The kids are all doing very well. Thank you again to all of you !!!! They know this photo is for you and how you help them!!!!

I have not seen them in 14 1/2 months. It's heartbreaking for all of us. I either talk with them or our manager every day. Thank God for this technology.

It has been pretty quiet in our town, Montrouis. The kids are in school and there haven't been any shootings, violence, fires or roadblocks in the past two months. My kids all came from very dysfunctional families and now this horrific violence going on in Haiti and look at them. They're doing so well. We are all extremely blessed. They bless me more than I bless them.

Port au Prince and the surrounding areas haven't gotten any better. I have been shipping boxes, even two bicycles, thru Missionary Flights International and Patrick, from our town, has found a way to get thru the gangs and roadblocks to get mail and supplies for so many. Last week he went to Port Au Prince and picked up expensive supplies for a resort Royal DeCameron. He was kidnapped and the thugs stole everything but thank God he was released. He is a man of God and very brave. He is going back to Port au Prince to pick up mail including my 6 big boxes that I packed and shipped. Just in time for Christmas.

The attorney is once again working on baby " Annie's" visa. I am speaking and believing and thanking God that she will come for her visa this time. She desperately needs surgeries.

I'd like you to meet Casin, age 10, on the right. He came from a town between Montrouis and Port au Prince.

In October gangs came to his village, shot and killed people including his mother. Some survivors ran and got on a bus and Casin was dropped off in our town and now he's a member of our family. He's doing well and I've talked to him on the phone. Our John Patrick, also age ten, has a new best friend.

God is good and amazing!!! I can hardly wait to get back to Haiti!

Thank you again and the kids thank you.

Sincerely,

Ann
